For Immediate Release:

Andrus Welcomes Regeneron Volunteers Back to Campus for a Day of Service

Yonkers, NY — October 22, 2025 — Andrus was proud and deeply grateful to welcome longtime volunteer partners from Regeneron Pharmaceuticals back to campus for another inspiring Day for Doing Good. This year, 43 dedicated Regeneron volunteers arrived ready to roll up their sleeves and make a tangible impact on the daily life of those we serve.

As one of Andrus' most committed volunteer groups, the Regeneron team continues to demonstrate extraordinary teamwork, generosity, and heart. Their efforts included clearing wooded areas in preparation for upcoming Halloween festivities and beautifying our Hope Space Farm, tackling projects that would take the Andrus facilities team weeks to complete, all in a single day.

Among the many special moments too was seeing families volunteer together. Marina Maiuri, Associate Project Manager, VelociGene Operations & Transgenic Technology at Regeneron Pharmaceuticals, Inc., along with her husband, Alan Nooten, and her mother, Mirella Maiuri, returned for their third consecutive year, exemplifying the enduring bond between Regeneron and the Andrus community.

"Andrus is truly blessed to have such steadfast partners," said Corine E. Lurry-Mabin, President and CEO of Andrus. "Regeneron's volunteers embody compassion in action, helping us create a campus where children and families can grow, heal, and thrive."

Founded in 1988 and headquartered in Tarrytown, New York, Regeneron Pharmaceuticals, Inc. is a leading biotechnology company that invents, develops, and commercializes life-transforming medicines. Through its' Day for Doing Good initiative, Regeneron encourages employees to volunteer in their local communities, fostering a culture of service and connection.

Andrus looks forward to continuing this meaningful partnership and welcoming Regeneron volunteers back to campus in the years ahead because we are so much stronger working together. For more information about Andrus and its programs, please visit www.andrus1928.org.
